
SELLER TIPS
SELLING? READ IT FIRST.
KNOW WHAT YOU'RE SIGNING.
Your listing agreement is your contract with the brokerage firm that markets your home
It sets the term, the services, how the firm is paid and how it ends
Here's what I recommend checking before you sign

GET IT IN WRITING.

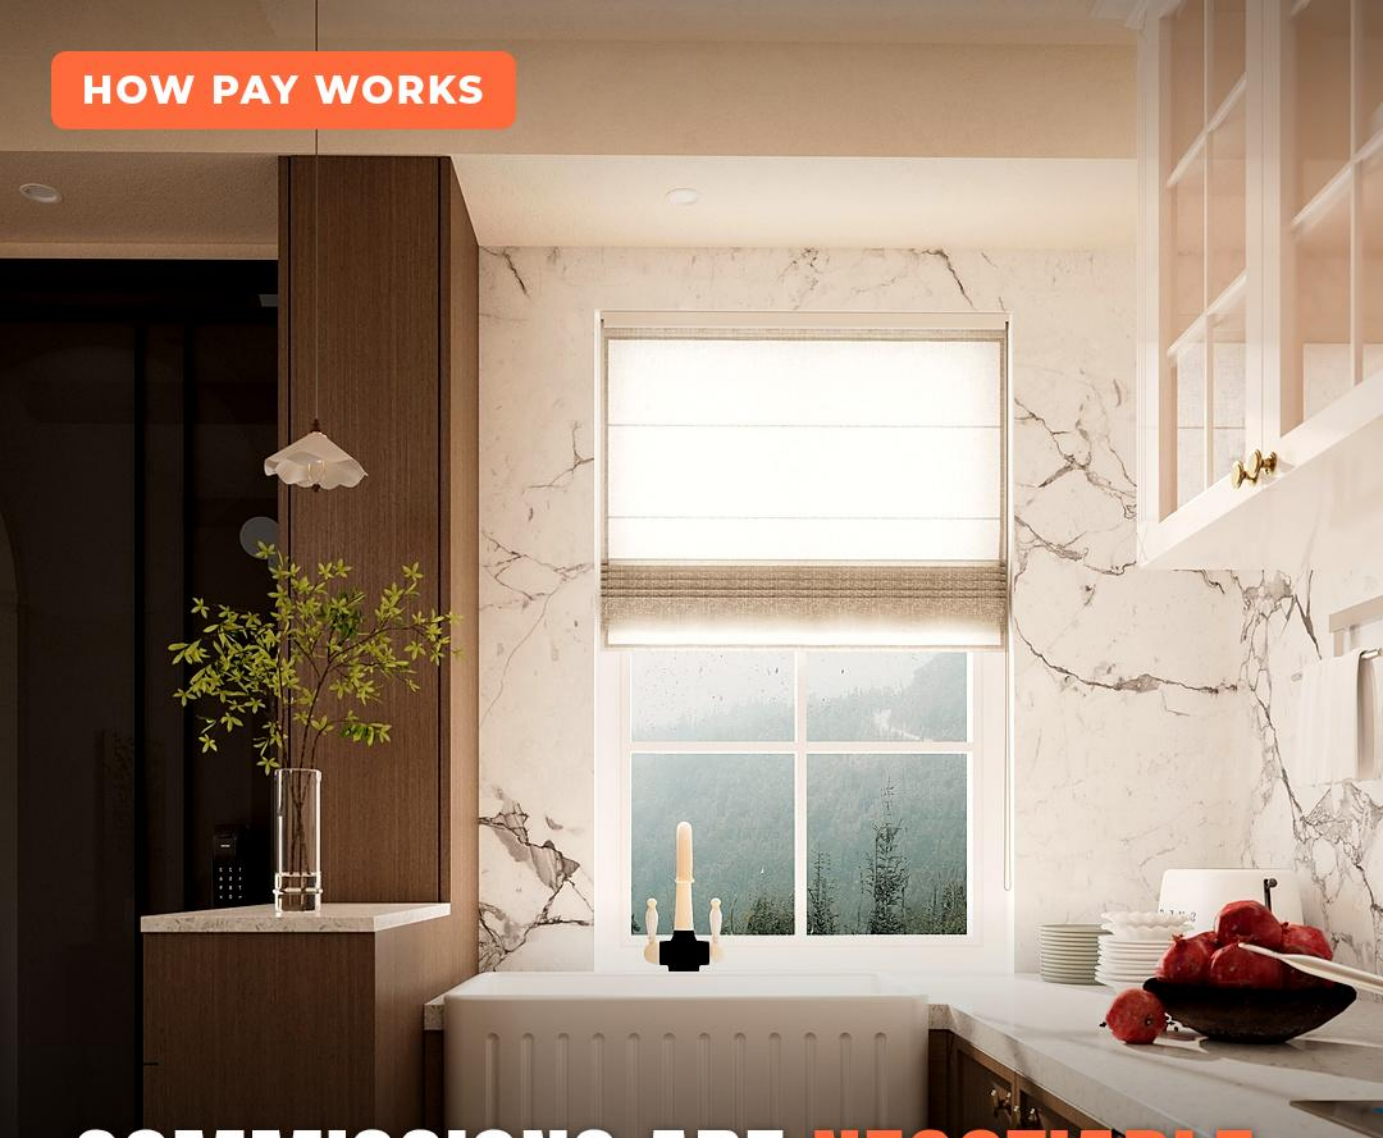

- NC: a listing agreement must be in writing and signed when it's formed (NCREC Rule 58A .0104)
- SC: it must be in writing and spell out the firm's duties, pay and dates (S.C. Code 40-57-135)
- SC: you get a copy at signing or right after

CHECK THE DATES.

- NC: it runs for a definite period and ends at expiration without notice (Rule 58A .0104)
- SC: it sets start and end dates and ends on the expiration date unless you sign a written extension (S.C. Code 40-57-135)
- Ask how long the term is and why

HOW PAY WORKS

COMMISSIONS ARE NEGOTIABLE.

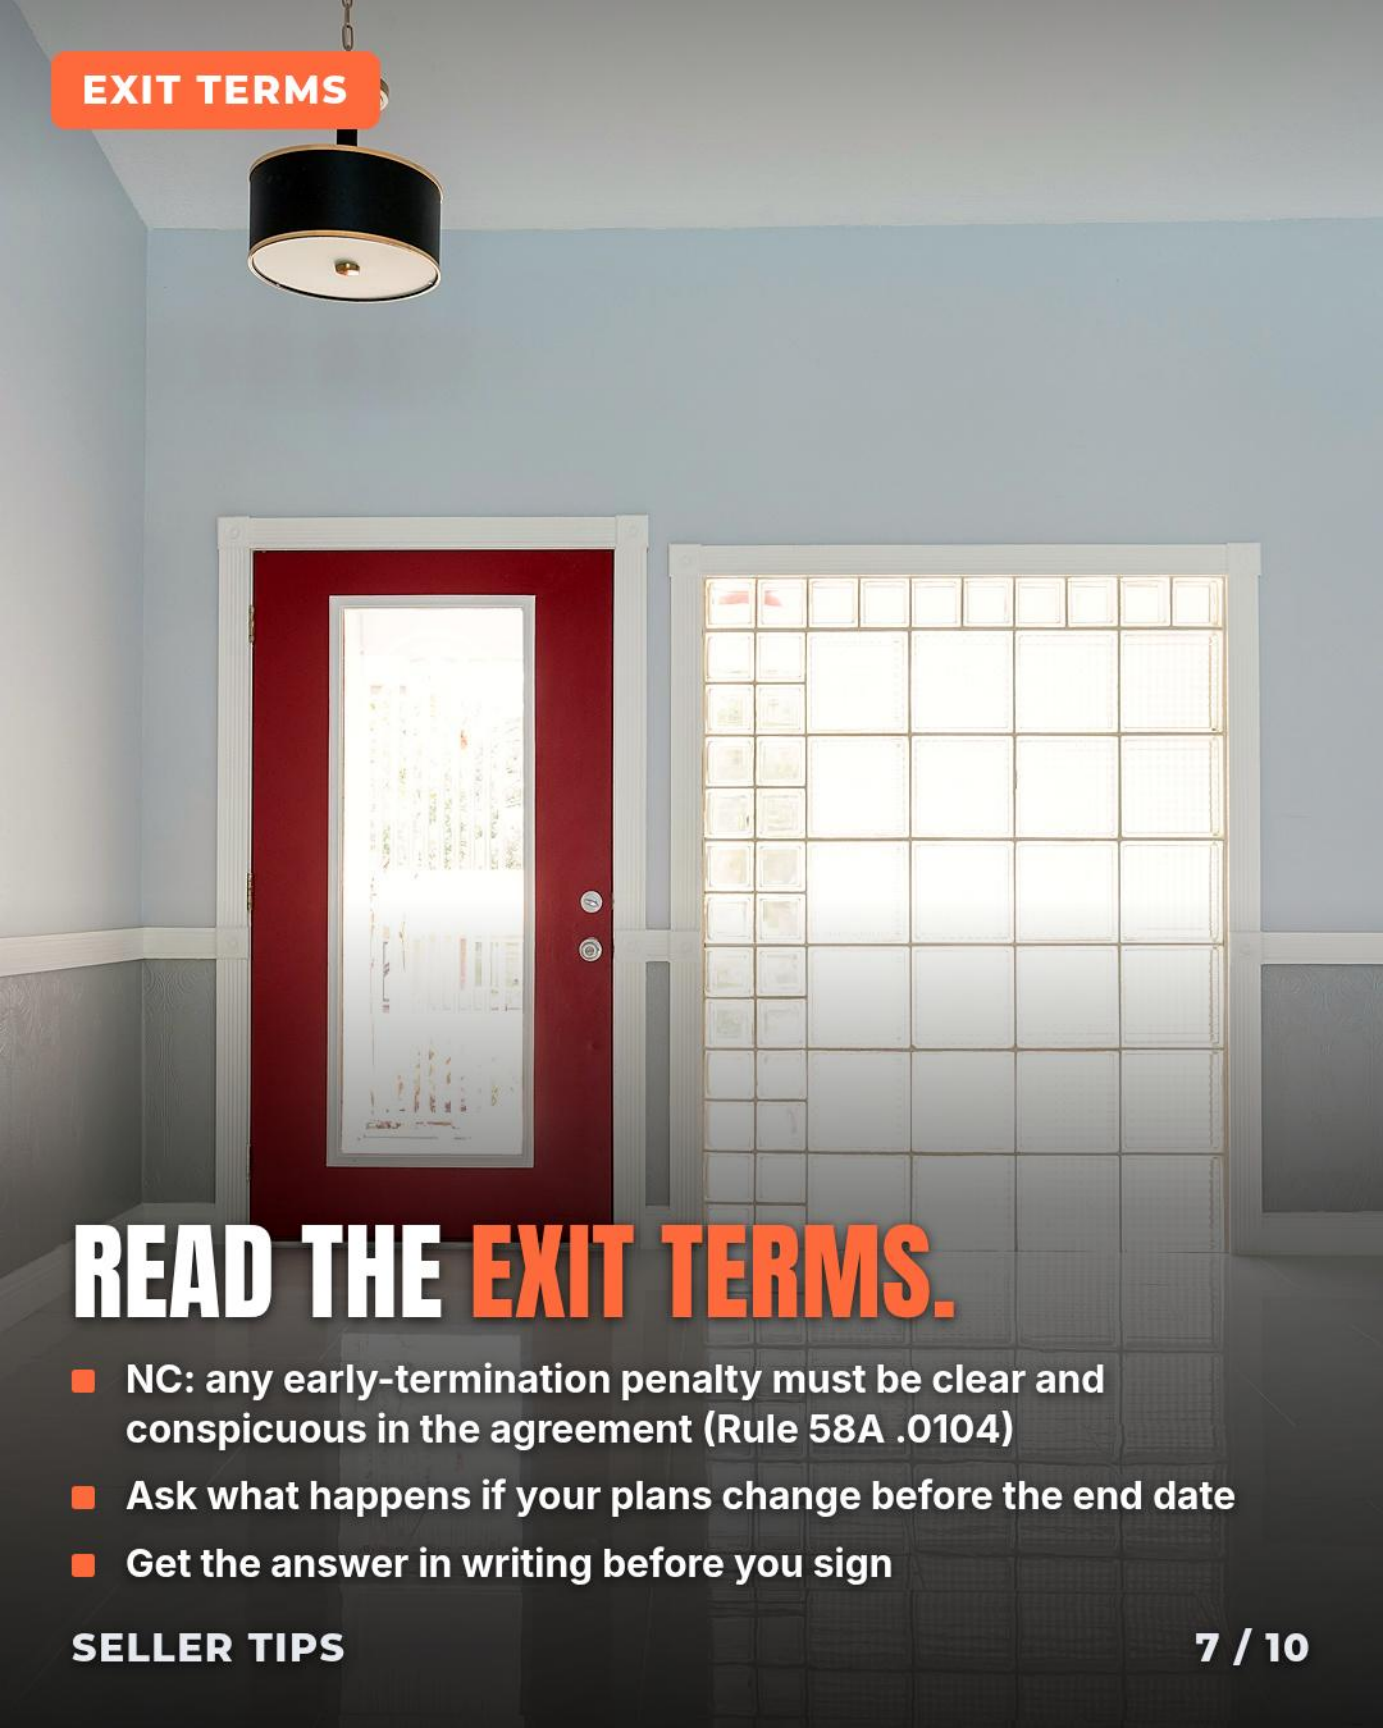

- Commissions aren't set by law; they're negotiated and put in writing (NAR)
- SC: the agreement states the fee or how it's figured, when it's earned and how it's shared with cooperating brokers (S.C. Code 40-57-135)
- Read the pay section line by line

BUYER-AGENT PAY

DECIDE ON BUYER-AGENT PAY.

- Since Aug. 17, 2024, offers of compensation to buyer agents can't be shown on an MLS (NAR settlement practice changes)
- With your approval, an offer can still be shared in other marketing, like flyers and brokerage websites
- Seller concessions can still appear on an MLS but can't be tied to paying a buyer's agent

READ THE EXIT TERMS.

- NC: any early-termination penalty must be clear and conspicuous in the agreement (Rule 58A .0104)
- Ask what happens if your plans change before the end date
- Get the answer in writing before you sign

DUAL AGENCY

ASK ABOUT DUAL AGENCY.

- NC: one firm may represent both buyer and seller only with each party's written authority (Rule 58A .0104)
- SC: the agreement explains the firm's policy on dual agency, designated agency and transaction brokerage (S.C. Code 40-57-135)
- Know your options before an offer comes in

DISCLOSURES

KNOW YOUR DISCLOSURE FORMS.

- NC: you get the "Working with Real Estate Agents" brochure at first substantial contact (Rule 58A .0104)
- SC: you get the Disclosure of Brokerage Relationships form at the first practical opportunity (S.C. Code 40-57-370)
- NC listing agreements include a fair housing nondiscrimination clause (Rule 58A .0104)

MY RECOMMENDATION

READ IT BEFORE YOU SIGN.

I recommend asking for the listing agreement ahead of time so you can read every page and ask questions first. Let's go through yours together.
