CHARLOTTE NC. BIDDLEVILLE.

A VILLAGE THAT BECAME A NEIGHBORHOOD.

- Biddleville began in 1871 as a village beside the college now called Johnson C. Smith University
- It sat two miles from the center of town until Charlotte grew out to meet it
- Its heart is Five Points, where West Trade, West Fifth, Rozzelles Ferry and Beatties Ford roads meet

HOW IT BEGAN

FIFTY-FIVE ACRES OF FARMLAND.

- In 1871, college president Rev. Stephen Mattoon and his wife Mary bought 55 acres across Beatties Ford Road
- They sold it off in small lots over the next 45 years
- That tract covered today's Mattoon and Cemetery streets and parts of Campus and French streets

THE CLOCK TOWER

BUILT IN 1883.

- Biddle Memorial Hall, pictured here, is a 3½-story brick and stone building with a clock tower
- Its tower is visible from much of the city, with corbelled brickwork and brownstone trim
- It was listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1975

THE LANDMARK

A WRAPAROUND PORCH FROM THE 1890S.

- The Dr. George E. Davis House, pictured here, is a designated Charlotte-Mecklenburg historic landmark
- Davis, a longtime professor at the college, bought the one-acre corner lot in 1889 for $100
- The house went up in the 1890s and likely got its brick veneer in the 1920s

A CAMPUS SINCE 1867.

- The college began on April 7, 1867, as Biddle Institute and took the name Johnson C. Smith University in 1923
- Its Neo Classical Carnegie Library was completed in 1912
- A stone memorial gateway went up in the 1920s, when the college took its new name

THE STREETCAR

THE STREETCAR CAME BACK.

- Trolley service out West Trade Street began on April 25, 1903
- On August 30, 2021, the CityLYNX Gold Line's second phase opened, running west to French Street
- Biddleville stops include Johnson C. Smith University and French Street

FIVE POINTS

A PLAZA AT THE CROSSROADS.

- Five Points Plaza held its grand opening in March 2022
- The city's $6 million project added a stage, swings, seating and a splashpad
- It sits at the Five Points crossroads on Beatties Ford Road

MY TIP

ASK ABOUT LANDMARK RULES.

- Some buildings here are designated historic landmarks, so ask what review applies before you plan exterior changes
- Walk from the nearest Gold Line stop at the hours you would ride
- Visit on an event day at Five Points Plaza to hear the street at its busiest
