CHARLOTTE NC. SEVERSVILLE.

A CENTURY-OLD MILL ON A GREENWAY.

- Seversville sits in Charlotte's West End, along the south side of West Trade Street
- Its landmark is Savona Mill, a brick textile mill whose first section was finished in 1916
- The Stewart Creek Greenway runs right beside the mill

THE NAME

NAMED FOR A COUNTRY STORE.

- Seversville began as a rural settlement on the south side of West Trade Street
- It takes its name from Henry G. Severs (1842–1915), who ran a country store there
- Bruns, Duckworth and Katonah avenues and Auten Street sit in the old Seversville area

THE MILL

BUILT FOR COTTON IN 1916.

- Savona Manufacturing Company was incorporated in 1908 to make fine cotton damask
- It expanded to a South Turner Avenue site two miles northwest of downtown, beside the Piedmont and Northern Railway
- Lockwood Greene designed the one-story Weave Mill, completed in 1916

THE SPINNING MILL

BIGGER BY 1921.

- The three-story Spinning Mill, designed by Richard C. Biberstein, doubled the operation
- Textile production ended in 1934, and the Old Dominion Box Company took over in 1935
- Its 1951 Paper Warehouse addition stands on mushroom-shaped concrete columns

THE MILL TODAY

ART GLASS AT THE STOP.

- The CityLYNX Gold Line's Bruns Avenue stop on West Trade Street opened on Aug. 30, 2021
- Its shelters carry art-glass windscreens by artist George Bates (2021)
- His imagery blends present-day scenes with history from Johnson C. Smith University archives and the Charlotte library

THE GREENWAY

A TRAIL ALONG THE CREEK.

- The Irwin Creek, Stewart Creek and Wesley Heights greenways run 2.7 miles from State Street to Cedar Street
- A section that opened in March 2025 added a 181-foot bridge next to Savona Mill, the longest in the county's greenway system
- Heading toward Uptown, the trail opens up skyline views

MY TIP

CHECK THE CREEK BEFORE YOU BUY.

- Homes near Stewart Creek can sit in or near a mapped floodplain, so check the FEMA flood map and ask about an elevation certificate
- Ask what is planned on nearby lots; the City of Charlotte posts rezoning petitions online
- Walk to the Bruns Avenue stop and the greenway at the hours you would use them
